Weather
Showers likely today and tonight in the valley. Partly cloudy Saturday with a chance of showers. Lows tonight in the 50s. Highs today and Saturday in the 60s and low 70s. Gusty southerly wind decreasing today. High today at Livermore 64.

Huh?

Capt. Bert Cherry of the Pleasanton Fire Dept. insists one side of this Fire Prevention Week banner stretched across Main St. was painted upside-down on purpose to attract attention to the cause. Heavy winds ripped the sign down yesterday, but Cherry says it will be put back up when the rains cease. Only The Shadow knows if the inversion was intentional, but the message is clear — practice fire prevention all year 'round.

Festival starts today

Pleasanton Days are here

PLEASANTON — This community will let its hair down, salute its storied past and generally let the good times roll for the next three days, albeit keeping a wary eye on the autumn skies.

Pleasanton Heritage Days, successor to Pleasanton Daze, takes wing this morning when some 100 booths are setup along Main Street and at the Amador Shopping Center.

Artists and craftsmen will offer homespun handiwork for sale along with merchant sidewalk sales. Residents are invited to take part in the Street Faire decked out in heritage costumes.

Merchants will hold a Moonlight Sale today from 4 to 10 p.m.

Saturday's portion of the hijinx begins at 8 a.m. with a pancake breakfast being staged by the Tri-Valley Royalaires Drum and Bugle Corps in the Bank of America parking lot on Main Street.

Valley residents will be able to take an old-fashioned hayride this afternoon, Saturday and Sunday. Harold Gabriel of Livermore will have his hay wagon at Neal and Railroad (next to the Southern Pacific tracks) from 1 to 5 p.m. today, 12 to 5 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday. Cost will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Route of the hayride will be from Neal and Railroad to Main, along Main to Spring, up Spring to Railroad and back to the loading point.

The big, red London double-decker bus will also be in service all three days. The bus will begin its runs today at 10 a.m. from the parking lot adjacent to Neal and the old Southern Pacific depot. Runs will leave the lot every hour on the hour and go to the Amador Shopping Center, then to Val Vista Center and the Alpha Beta Center before returning to downtown.

The Saturday trips will begin at 6 p.m. from the Fairgrounds and go to the same shopping centers. Runs will leave on the hour and return to the Fairgrounds.

The Heritage Days barbecue is scheduled for the large barbecue area at the Fairgrounds. A no-host cocktail bar will be in operation starting about 5 p.m.

Should the weather turn rainy again Saturday, the barbecue and all other events will be held in the cafeteria at the Fairgrounds.

Barbecue will be served from 6 to 10 p.m.with chefs Gene O'Brien, Tony Macchiano and George Spiliotopoulos doing the honors. Sid Leon is in charge of the bar.

Judging in the beard and moustache contest will be held at 8 p.m. along with drawing for the winner in the Heritage Days Bicentennial Vacation trip for two to Boston. Winners of the Bicentennial Essay grand prizes will also be announced. $50 savings bonds are to be presented to the best essayists in K-5, 6-8 and high school divisions.

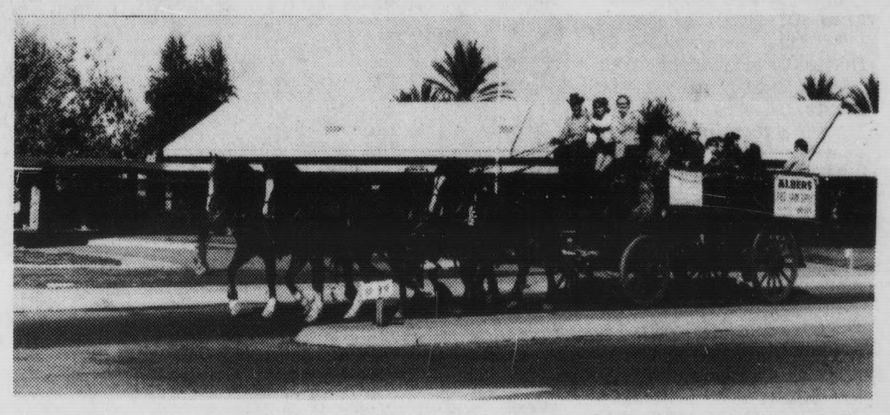

Each of the weekly winners are eligible for the grand prize.

Tickets for the vacation drawing as well as the barbecue will be available all day today and Saturday. They are available from most merchants downtown or at the chamber offices, 10 W. Neal St.

As an added feature to Saturday's program, the Pleasanton Bicentennial Band will perform from 6:30 p.m. at the barbecue.

Hours for the Street Faire, organized by the Pleasanton Art League, will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. today, 10 to 5 Saturday and 10-3 on Sunday.

Little retail, industrial growth

Building year varies

A slow start, a surprising late surge, but an uncertain finish that could carry over into 1976.

That was the "New Construction Story" for the year now drawing to a close. Pulling together the statistics and the projections for Livermore, Dublin-San Ramon and Pleasanton, the picture is one of uncertain residential growth, very little retail commerce and just about nothing on the industrial ledger.

Pleasanton continued to set the pace for all the valley with 24 single family starts in September, bringing to 574 the total for the first nine months. "But that will also be just about the total for 12 months," reports chief building inspector Charles Dobbins. There are "virtually no more sewer connections" available at the city's Sunol Boulevard plant, and some court-clouded capacity still to be determined at the VCSD treatment plant.

The Valley Community Services District reported a total of "about 1000 dwelling unit equivalents" available throughout 1975. That capacity translated into 155 residential units in Dublin and San Ramon, and 148 on the Pleasanton side of that service district. (That 148 is counted as part of the city's 574 grand total.)

North of the freeway, VCSD also provided 231 dwelling unit equivalents that went for new retail commerce in Dublin and San Ramon.

Still to be allocated by the VCSD are some 350 DUE's, of which 217 are already committed north of the freeway, and 57 "may be allocated to Pleasanton, pending a final court decision on litigation."

Livermore will report "virtually no growth" in 1975, and has very little new prospect for growth in the foreseeable future. Pleasanton does have an outside chance for some "modest expansion" of the Sunol Boulevard plant, "but only if the Regional Water Quality Control Board approves more connections."

Add it all up and it looks like 750 single family dwellings built in the four valley communities in 1975. Based on the 34,000 dwelling units those same communities started out the year with, that works out to just over two percent growth — a figure very close to the long-term goals now being adopted on the Alameda County side of this basin.

The prospects for residential growth south of the county line in 1976 are somewhat below the 1975 totals.

There is another kind of growth however, one that does not require new sewer connections. "Alterations and repairs" continue to show great activity throughout the valley, most of them reflecting expansion of existing homes to accommodate growing families — who can't find, or can't afford, a larger dwelling.

Pleasanton alone reported 230 such permits in the last nine months, a figure likely matched by Livermore (which fails to offer that kind of breakdown.)

Also showing no letup is the boom in backyard pools. An estimated 300 families added a pool to their property just in 1975.

Commerce and industry continue to show little activity, with Dublin leading that pace, followed by Livermore and Pleasanton.

Gerton imporved

Bernard Gerton is "showing improvement" in his recuperation from a heart attack suffered last weekend while he was hunting in rugged country near Elko, Nevada.

Reports received today from Elko General Hospital indicate that "he's sitting up in bed today, and is out of intensive care."

Several members of the Gerton family, including his wife and brother, have been at Gerton's bedside for the past four days. The former Pleasanton mayor and well-known valley realtor is an avid outdoorsman and hunter.

Board clears driveway

Despite objections from the staff — and initially from the board itself — the Pleasanton Design Review Board unanimously approved access to a proposed liquor store at West Las Positas and Hopyard Road Wednesday night.

The discussion centered around access to the store from West Las Positas. The staff had made a condition that the driveway just for the liquor store be eliminated and that traffic could enter at a driveway for the Val Vista shopping center only 40 feet to the west.

Engineer Don Sooby said that "it would enhance traffic safety to close off the driveway" and initially board member Bob Butler seemed to agree.

However, the arguments of Jack Bras and Richard Humphrey, the owner of the store, swayed the three.man board and approval was granted.

The board also approved the signs for three fast food operations in the Valley Plaza shopping center. However, the approval was conditional on Pizza Hut closing up the space between the letters on its sign.

Two signs will be removed from the professional building at 800 Main Street, both on the west side of the building.

The two front signs total about 16 square feet and were erected without approval from the city.

The readerboard sign on Ray Street, however, will be allowed to remain standing.

Harris clears hurdle

Must add parking space

PLEASANTON — The Board of Adjustment Wednesday night granted Victor Lund and Jay Harris a variance for five years to allow a restaurant to open on Main Street with less than the required number of parking spaces.

The vote was 2-0 with Gregg Doherty abstaining.

Harris, who now runs the Corral Drive-In, wants to build a Mexican restaurant in the former Edgren auto dealership showroom. However, due to the configuration of the lot, it is almost impossible to come up with the required 27 parking spaces for the 58-seat restaurant.

The 19 parking spaces available would allow only a 33-seat restaurant, which both Lund and Harris claim would make it economically impossible to operate.

However Lund, who owns the property, is trying to lease some land from the Southern Pacific Railroad along its right-of-way for the extra eight spaces. One of the conditions of approval is that Lund pursue that option and try to get those extra slots.

Also, due to the 320 foot frontage on Main Street, there is ample on-street parking for the restaurant and Lund testified that many customers are from downtown and will walk to the new restaurant.

City Attorney Ken Scheidig pushed for the time limit on the variance so that the city will have some option if the situations change. If a blanket variance were granted, the city would never have the chance to regain those eight parking slots.

Frank Pozar came before the board asking that a 6,000 square foot building proposed for the corner of Hopyard Road and West Las Positas not be required to have a large loading berth.

The building will used as a liquor store and a real estate office and no large trucks will be making deliveries, architect Jack Bras said.

The board approved unanimously on the condition that no large trucks ever make deliveries there.

The board also denied the request of Salvador Victoria to build an enclosed patio in the back of his house at 3865 Hot Springs Court despite there being no objections from the neighbors.

The patio would have extended too close to the property line and also could have been turned into a full-scale extra room without city control.

Board seeking law enforcement

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Energy Commission has called for strict enforcement of the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit, but the California Highway Patrol says it is doing all it can.

The commission also adopted a resolution urging state agencies to buy more smaller cars to replace current full-sized state vehicles.

Commission Chairman Richard Maullin said the state could reduce gasoline consumption of its vehicles by 2.8 million gallons a year and save $1.7 million dollars.

Maullin said that could be done if 60 per cent of the replacement cars bought were small vehicles capable of getting traveling 23 or more miles per gallon.

Motion leaves future in doubt

BART bus service gets nod to June

Alameda County Bureau

Bay Area Rapid Transit district feeder bus service from the valley to BART stations will continue through June, 1976, following a twisted resolution passed yesterday in which board representative Robert Allen cast a "no" vote.

An acrimonious, 60 minute debate ended in a six to two vote when directors went beyond general manager Frank Herringer's recommendation to continue service and passed a more stringent measure.

Pleasanton City Councilwoman Joyce LeClaire addressed the board, "strongly supporting" Herringer's recommendation to continue service through June, 1976.

"We want the most efficient, maximum service in the valley for our tax dollars," she said.

Under San Francisco director Elmer B. Cooper's motion, bus service will terminate June 30, 1976, "unless sufficient funds for 1976-77 are secured."

The motion also orders Herringer to cut back service if, as expected, it exceeds the $2 million budgeted for the current year.

An amendment by Alameda director Dr. Harvey Glasser also orders the general manager to meet with communities served by the feeder bus service and the Alameda-Contra Costa Transit district to discuss independent community participation with AC transit.

Glasser added his amendment because, he said, "BART should not be in the bus business" if the district cannot afford it.

Allen, a strong supporter of continued bus service to the valley and other areas not served directly by BART, voted against the proposal because of its restrictions, he said.

He would have voted in favor of a simple acceptance of Herringer's recommendation, but found Cooper's and Glasser's conditions inhibiting.

Richmond representative Nello Bianco offered the original motion to accept Herringer's recommendation, and at first joined Allen and Fremont board member John Glenn in rejecting the Cooper-Glasser substitute.

Bianco joined the majority in a recount of the vote when he said he could not go back to his constituents and say he cast a "no" vote for continued bus service.

Cooper's motion differs essentially from Herringer's recommendation in that it specifically says bus service will not be continued if additional funding is not found for 1976-77.

Board chairman Richard Clark (Oakland) said "programs to Pittsburg, Antioch, Martinez (and other areas, including the valley) are simlply gratutious and not part of BART."

Glasser argued the problem presented a trade-off and that the district is forced to decide how best to spend some $2 million currently budgeted for outlying BART district areas.

Allen insisted the district must approach the state legislature for permanent funding as "one Bay Area Rapid Transit District, not fragmented, parochial groups."

He contended some $12½ million has been paid in taxes by people not now receiving rail service, and that "BART is essentially an inter-county link."

Some $2.4 million has been paid in taxes by the Livermore Valley this year, he said, noting the $771,000 in half-cent sales tax revenue pays for the valley's share of the $2 million bus system.

Cooper retorted that his constituents "in Pacific Heights and the Richmond (districts of San Francisco)" support BART through sales and property tax, too, yet "the rails don't run to their doors."

"I suggest Mr. Allen turn those computers to the money people in Pacific Heights and the Richmond pay into BART," he said, adding San Franciscans must subsidize the city's muni railway with $40 million a year in property tax.

"We owe no bended knee allegience to people in Contra Costa County," chairman Clark added.

Tempers flared in the middle of the vote when the until then absent director James Hill of Walnut Creek appeared at the meeting.

Bianco's attempts to explain the motion to Hill were cut short by Clark who insisted on calling the vote.

Hill abstained in the first round, but voted in favor during the recall ballot.

Clark at one point cut off four directors who asked for floor when he ordered the immediate tally.

He and Hill got into a bitter exchange when the Walnut Creek director asked the board's administrative assistant for clarification on a point of order.

"You don't ask the staff that," Clark said, "you ask the chair for clarification."

More terse words were exchanged between Clark and Cooper when the San Franciscan told the chairman "we looked like asses to those people out there. They're laughing at us."

During the meeting, Bianco reminded Clark that during his (Bianco's) term as board chairman, he had granted Clark "innumerable latitudes" in procedures to allow the Oaklander to explain matters and question points of order. Now, he contended, Clark was cutting short all attempts tp bring Hill up to date.

Car crash victim 'stable'

Veronica Dougherty, injured in a car crash Sept. 24 in which a 12-year-old boy was killed, was listed in "serious but stable" condition in the intensive care unit at Stanford Medical Hospital yesterday.

Dougherty, of 1362 St. Mary's Drive, was transferred from Valley Memorial Hospital Sept. 29 in critical condition because a doctor wanted her to be closer to specialized medical equipment.

Michael Kellman, 12, of 479 Hillcrest Ave., also a passenger in the car driven by Dougherty, was pronounced dead on arrival at VMH. Dougherty's son, John, 12, received facial injuries requiring surgery. He was released from VMH yesterday.

John Michalel Beserra, 29, of 5860 Victoria Lane, was charged with felony drunk driving and vehicular manslaughter in the accident which occurred at the intersection of Seventh and H Sts. His case was continued to Oct. 14.

Jaycees plan house of horror

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Jaycees, who once again will present a House of Horrors during the Halloween season, invite other civic groups and organizations to sponsor a room in the scary house.

The Jaycees hope to construct eight to 12 rooms, each with a different Halloween theme, for children eight years and older and brave adults.

In order to make the project a success (last year the local group's house was judged the best in the state) the Jaycees need assistance from other groups and organizations.

There will be no cost for others to sponsor a room and the Jaycees will award $100, $50 and $25 prizes for those rooms voted the best by judges and/or people visiting the House of Horrors.

The House will open Saturday, Oct. 25 and run through Halloween night at The Barn in Livermore (behind the Police Administration Building on Pacific Avenue).

Featured will be rooms filled with creatures of all shapes and sizes, black lights, spooky music, and a concession stand offering cold drinks, popcorn and other snacks.

As part of the opening day festivities Oct. 25, the Jaycees again will sponsor a children's costume contest with new plans for a parade up Pacific Avenue or Dolores Street.

Those interested in sponsoring a House of Horrors room should call 447-8134 by Sunday. Rooms will be alloted on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Garage request denied

PLEASANTON — The planning commission Wednesday night denied Douglas Safreno's application to add to his Shell station at the corner of First Street and Vineyard Avenue.

Safreno wanted to add a garage for mechanical work to the existing station on the southeast corner of the two streets, but the commissioners felt the original decision to allow the station was wrong and that expansion would simply add to the mistake.

The only dissenting vote was cast by Dave Shepherd, who commented "The station is there. I don't think we gain anything by denying the application."

Jack Bras spoke for Safreno and said "Good planning is not only aesthetic but also functional. This business does serve the public."

Howard Garrigan and Bob Butler both agreed that approving the expansion would be extending "spot" zoning. "I would like to see us look at the whole block or not do anything at all" said Garrigan.

Chairman Walt Wood felt that any commercial activities on the east side of First Street should be viewed in light of the whole street, not in just a single block or parcel.

Safreno claimed that the new discount gas station across the street will cut into his business and that he needed to rezone 11,300 square feet so that he could build a garage but the commissioners turned down the request.

The planners did approve a general plan amendment that switched 5.2 acres of land zoned high density residential (apartments) to commercial and public zoning.

Chris Beratlis, a minor partner in the project, said "There's very little commercial space downtown and what there is is being leased very rapidly."

The commissioners specified that office buildings would not be constructed and that work must begin on the project within two years or the property will revert to agricultural zoning.

This is the second general plan amendment approved this year out of the three allowed from January to December.

Frank Pozar's application for a conditional use permit to construct a liquor store/real estate office at the northwest corner of West Las Positas and Hopyard Road was unanimously approved.

Bicentennial committee schedules input meeting

PLEASANTON — The Pleasanton Bicentennial Heritage Committee will hold a "general input meeting" for the general public to seek help on the research of possible heritage homes and buildings in Pleasanton for National Bicentennial Historic Site Designations.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 22 in the Pleasanton Library conference room on Black and Santa Rita, will be open to discuss the following points on homes picked to date for receiving a plaque in 1976: Date of construction; significance of past and present ownership; has the house or building been moved from its original site; any major external changes; personal non-documented knowledge any anything else of pertinance or value.

The following addresses are considered a semi-final list of the committee for recognition, however any oversight will be corrected if so indicated by the public:

Anton Peterson home, 431 St. Mary's; Charles Graham home, 443 St. Mary's; Nertons, 462 St. Mary's; Donahue home, 4512 Second St.; Hall home, 215 Neal St.; Benedict home, 303 Neal St.; Joshua Neal home, 431 Neal St.; Zwissler home 4636 Second St.; Bessie Wells, 4466 Second St.; 229 Kottinger; Shamlin home, 4432 First St.; Rollo Bell, 4336 First St.; Dr. Pridemore office, 219 Division; Harms home, 624 Division; Pleasanton Hotel; Judge Gale's office, 62 W. Neal St.; Johnston Bldg.; 465 Main St.; Arendt Bldg., Main and Neal; Oddfellows Hall, 336 St. Mary's St.; Tayrys Crafts Bldg., Main St.; Kolln Hardware Main St.; SP Depot; Presbyterian Church, Neal St. and Century House.

Cerberus controls Rad lab

Like Cerberus, the mythical guardian of the Gates of Hell, the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory has three heads — all of which have overlapping authority.

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), the Regents of the University of California, and the Lab bureaucracy itself each control part of the Lab's operations, and it is often difficult to pinpoint which head is in charge of a specific area.

ERDA, formerly the Atomic Energy Commission, contracts with the Regents to run a National Laboratory. The Regents, in turn, have set LLL much like a separate campus, although that parallel breaks down under close examination.

ERDA also supplies the funds to run the Lab, with the Regents receiving a small fee for their middleman role. The Lab hierarchy, then, must not only please the Regents — the subcontractor — but also ERDA — the agency with the money.

This combination of two separate bodies is codified in Contract 48, a lengthy document first drawn up in 1939 and modified extensively since then.

The contract is complex and full of cost accounting procedures, a 200-page section on personnel and some very interesting tidbits.

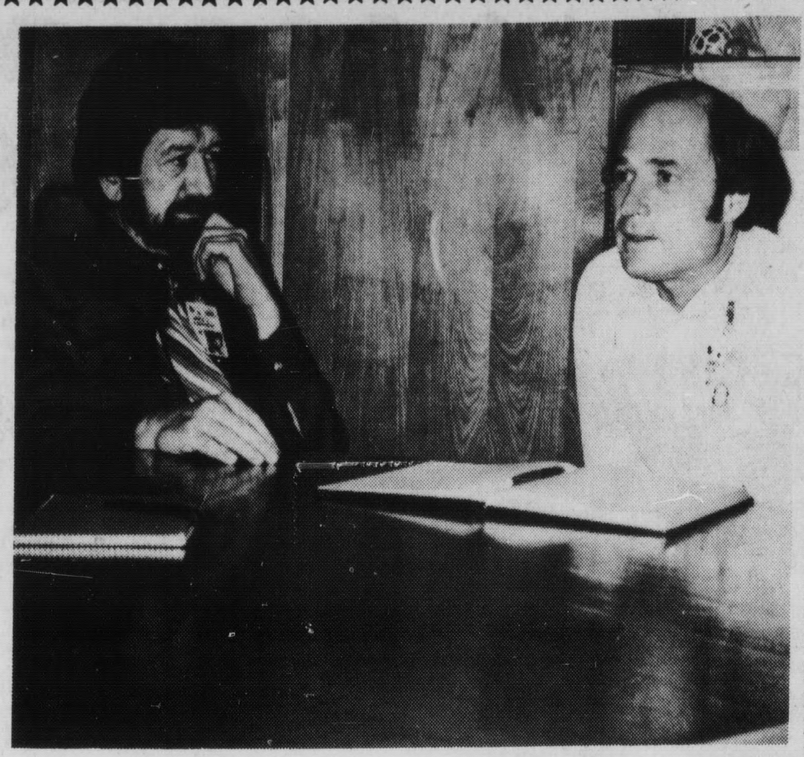

For example, ERDA has the right to blackball any employe at the Lab. According to Article XIV, Section 8, the federal agency may determine who is not to be employed at the Lab.

Also, the federal government owns the laboratory, even though it is operated by the Regents and run directly by the LLL bureaucracy.

So then, according to Deputy Director James Carothers, "People who work in the Lab are university employes" despite the fact that the government owns the land and buildings.

However, the Lab has not chosen to use all of the university policies (a policy is a statement of intent, according to Carothers, and can include such matters as personnel relations or contracting matters) in Livermore.

Partially this is due to the fact that the Lab is not an educational institution and many of the UC policies would simply not apply.

JAMES CAROTHERS (LEFT) AND JAMES KAHN ARE NOW IN CHARGE

However, to use different policies, the Lab must go through the Regents. "In terms of policy, the Lab has the freedom to propose any policy to the Regents" Carothers explained.

However, not only must the Regents approve any change in policy, so must ERDA.

Individual UC campuses follow much the same process that the Lab does, Carothers explained, except that the state legislature is the funding body rather than ERDA.

The fact that Lab employes work for the university has been the cause of some confusion, for no longer do any employes in Livermore fall into UC pay scales. The Lab has set up its own category — Category 5 — for its employes alone and salary ranges no longer relate in any way to UC salary ranges.

This changeover is of recent vintage, however, and in the process of redrawing classifications, LLL officials "red - circled" some employes.

"Red-circling" means that an employe's pay scale was altered downward from the UC pay scale and that for some individuals, their salary was out of the new pay ranged.

In other words, an employe may have been making $1,000 a month in the UC system, but under Category 5 the top pay was $950 a month.

That person was then red-circled, which simply means that no raises were given until the person's salary once more fell in the Category 5 scale.

Presently 254 Lab employes are red-circled out of 5,700, according to Assistant Deputy Director James Kahn.

Nearly half of these are LLL police officers and the next biggest group is administrative and clerical employes.

However, red-circling was not the only issue that Lab employes were upset about. Cal Andre, president of the California State Employes Association (CSEA) chapter at the Lab, said one other problem was "the complete insensitivity of the personnel department to the needs and concerns of the people working here. But now that's changed" he commented.

"What used to be problems are now handled in such a way that they are no longer problems" Andre said, but he is still not completely satisfied with the way the Lab is run.

"Many aspects of the situation are still intolerable" he said flatly but he has high hopes that Kahn and Carothers, who are relatively new in the personnel relations department, will bring about positive changes.

One problem Andre sees is the grievance policy. He does not disagree with the policy — which calls for hearings, if necessary, and allows appeals all the way up the President of the UC system — but with the items that are grievable.

Kahn explained that grievable matters are only those that deal with improper application of Lab policy. Other complaints must go through the Administrative Appeal system, which calls for only an appeal to the director of the Lab and then to the president of the campuses if satisfaction is not achieved.

But even though ERDA doesn't seem to have much effect on all this, that agency must approve all policies — and thus which matters are grievable.

"In the most basic sense, the Regents run the Lab" said Carothers, but to an employe there are really three heads to deal with — the Lab bureaucracy, the UC bureaucracy and the ERDA bureaucracy.

Like Cerberus, the mythical three-headed dog who was watched by the River Styx, three layers of bureaucrats are very difficult to deal with without some degree of frustration.

Fire mars Del Valle opening

LIVERMORE — On the eve of Del Valle Regional Park's opening of its new grounds to the public, a sudden fire scorched eight acres of the park.

The fire began about 3:40 p.m. Sunday in a picnic area just inside the park's entrance off Mines Road. Spread by winds of up to 5 m.p.h., flames at one point were carried up a hill in a tornado effect.

EBRPD officials report no injuries or damage to buildings at the park, which is owned by the state and operated by the East Bay Regional Park District. The west shore of the lake opened yesterday after being closed a year and a half for construction. Facilities now include more than 100 campsites, two beaches, two concession stands and boat rental centers, and flush toilets with a self-contained sewage system.

Some 30 firemen, including units from EBRPD, State Division of Forestry and Alameda County Fire Department, took two hours to control the fire. Chemical retardants were dropped on the flames from two planes dispatched by the State Division of Forestry.

Lithophiles

The Lithophiles, a gem and mineral club, will enjoy a slide program on the history of the North American continent Thursday, Oct. 16 at the Livermore Recreation Center.

The 7:30 p.m. program also explores the natural resources of the continent's precious metals and rare minerals.

Members will plant the upcoming Lithorama, a gem and mineral show slated Nov. 22-23 at The Barn. Door prizes and refreshments are featured following the meeting which is open to the public.

The club will make a field trip to Coalinga for Stone Canyon jasper Oct. 18 and 19.

The Lithophiles have a lapidary shop at The Barn open Tuesdays from 7:30 to 10 p.m. for members.

Rummage sale

The Soroptomist Club of Pleasanton will offer new as well as used clothing and toys donated by stores such as Liberty House, The Clothes Tree and Mervyns Saturday, Oct. 11 at Hap's Restaurant in Pleasanton.

The sale from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. will benefit community projects of the club.

Hadassah

Mrs. Betty Steinberg will address the Shalom Chapter of Hadassah Wednesday, Oct. 15 at the home of Janet Fink, 518 Hazel St., Livermore (447-1780).

Mrs Steinberg, who has traveled extensively throughout Israel, will speak about her impressions and work that is being accomplished there. She is presently on a visit from New Jersey to see her son and his family in Livermore.

Guests are welcome at the 8 p.m. program.

Legal secretary

A tour of the new Hayward Police Department is part of activities planned by the Southern Alameda County Legal Secretaries Association for its annual "Day in Court" held in conjunction with National Legal Secretaries Week, Oct. 12-16.

The group meets at 9 a.m. Oct. 16 at the Hayward Municipal Court. New computerized systems will be demonstrated and trials in progress will be observed by the secretaries. The tour of the police department will be conducted following lunch at Catrina's in Hayward.

Legal secretaries interested in attending the day's activities may contact Norma Montgomery at 582-4777.

Irma Adams of Livermore is one of two to be initiated into the association at a potluck dinner meeting Tuesday, Oct. 14 hosted by Mary Lou Novak of Castro Valley. Plans will be finalized for the club's participation in the "Know and Grow" State Inter-Club function slated Oct. 18 at the El Rancho Tropicana in Santa Rosa.

Legal secretaries are invited to join the group, and may contact Ione Iverson at 483-5678 for more information.

Legal rights of women

The public is invited to participate in a second "Legal Rights of Women" conference by the Livermore-Pleasanton branch of the American Association of University Women, and the Las Positas Chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

The Kaiser Center for Technology will be the site of the legal conference. Due to the large turnout at the first conference, the workshops this year will be held on two consecutive Saturdays, Oct. 18 and Oct. 25 from 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Both sessions will cover a variety of topics pertaining to consumer law, family law, estate planning, credit, and "A Woman's Place" look at the Equal Rights Amendment and female employment.

Helen Tirsell, Livermore city councilwoman, will be the keynote speaker at the Oct. 18 conference. Joining Ms. Tirsell in the workshop will be Attorney Harriet Thayer, who specializes in consumer action and legal services.

Also participating in the workshops are Attorneys Ellen Bellock of Oakland, Betty Browner of Hayward, Sue Bender of Berkeley, Kay Cushing of Dublin and Patty Grossman of Livermore.

The registration fee, which includes lunch, is $3.75. Registration forms are available at the Dublin, Pleasanton and Livermore public libraries.

Deadline for registration has been extended to Oct. 15.

Potpourri

The Potpourri group of the Livermore Newcomers gathers Tuesday, Oct. 14 at the home of Linda Balhorn, 607 Yosemite Dr.

Member Jan Neto will offer tips on hair care, styling and wigs. Those interested in attending the program are asked to contact Gayle Holt at 447-3990.

Y-W Women

A trip to San Francisco via BART and a tour of the Hyatt Regency Hotel are scheduled by the Pleasanton Y-W Women's Club Wednesday, Oct. 15.

Child care will be available at the First Baptist Church in Pleasanton where members will gather before departing for San Francisco. The outing replaces the regular meeting.

Twin Mothers

Janet Brownlee - will address the Twin Valley Mothers of Twins Club on the importance of diet and nutrition Monday, Oct. 13 at 8 p.m.

An adult Halloween party is planned for Oct. 25 at 8 p.m., with members dressed in costume.

All mothers of twins or multiple-birth children are invited to attend club function. For more information contact Lea Frederick at 846-8652 or Jan Kinkade at 846-2697.

Getting to know you

Young women may find that the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club is their cup of tea (or coffee), as have Kathy Pilkington and Sandy Schiel, at two get-acquainted meetings planned to introduce prospective members to the club. The first will be hosted by Kathy Tuesday, Oct. 14 at 10 a.m. Cheryl Ruley will host the second on Wednesday, Oct. 15 at 7:30 p.m. The Pleasanton Junior Women's Club is a local service organization open to women from 18 to 35 years of age. Its community projects include fund-raising for the American Cancer Society and Muscular Dystrophy, providing volunteers for the Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center and Pleasanton Convalescent Hospital, school projects such as Safety Town, and the annual Mardi Gras campaign to benefit a special community project. If planning to attend either gathering contact Sandy today at 846-2631.

Seniors serve up the Orient

The Senior Californians of Dublin-San Ramon will host a fund-raising Oriental luncheon Thursday, Oct. 23 at the Shannon Community Center in Dublin. The luncheon, open to the public, will be catered at noon by Dublin's Hong Kong Restaurant for $3 per person. Chairman Fred Stemerick, shown here with two of his committee members — Edie Stemerick and Bea Lindsey, promises lively entertainment to be provided by members of the Senior Californians. For tickets contact Margaret McCaffery at 828-2857.

PWC

The Pleasanton Women's Club will convene Tuesday, Oct. 14 at 11 a.m. at the Clubhouse. Mary Morley will speak on Japanese Flower Arrangements.

Members will bring sandwiches, with coffee and dessert provided.

A.A.R.P.

The Livermore - Amador Valley Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will elect and install officers for a new term today at 1 p.m. at the Livermore Recreation Center.

A.A.R.P. is an organization of older persons which promotes "growing older" as a normal and dignified process with potential for growth and service. Membership is open to men and women 55 years of age or older, employed or retired.

Aquacowboys

The Livermore Aquacowboys Parents Club will sponsor its first midnight buffet and dance Saturday, Oct. 11 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Church.

Tickets at $6 per couple include dancing to live music, a cold midnight buffet and door prizes. Don Breithaupt will take comic pictures of guests for entertainment.

Proceeds will benefit the Aquacowboys travel fund to the Junior Olympics next year. For more information and tickets call 447-8475 or 443-0917.

Child abuse

The film is sponsored by the New Parents Support Group of Livermore. The New Parents meet the second and fourth Thursdays of each month from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the Red Cross building.

Topics previously approached by the group include nutrition, poisonous plants, artificial resucitation, infant swim lessons, allergies, Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, family counseling and sex education. For more information contact Betty at 447-7082.

Newcomers

New officers of the Livermore Newcomers will be installed at a luncheon at the Emperors Garden in Livermore Wednesday, Oct. 15.

No-host cocktails will be served at 11:30 a.m.

The Newcomers Club is a social organization open to persons who have resided in Livermore less than two years. Members are offered instruction in crafts and sports, as well as a selection of special interest group which meet monthly.

For more information about the club, or for luncheon reservations, contact Carole Nellis at 447-7855.

Coming out of the closet

Mike Zampa

A volleyball travels 120 miles per hour when it flies off the fist of a good player. Trying to return it is like playing a bare handed third base with Johnny Bench at the plate.

There is one cure for someone who flinches at the sight of a white meteor hurtling down from the net. You've got to take one in the face, wait until the tears subside and then go back at it.

Shelly Steen interrupted a sizzling blast with her nose once at age 13. After that, the pain and tears became a part of the routine. The bumps and bruises were sensitive bits of evidence to offer when the smart guys called it a sissy game.

They don't belittle volleyball like they used to. Wilt Chamberlain plays it, and everyone knows he could spike a Volvo if he wanted.

But volleyball's step up in respectability has come too late for Shelly. She retired after the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City, where her American team took the bronze medal.

Because her father, John Smith, was a national caliber player, Shelly started volleyball before grade school. Through all the seven-hour workouts and sideways glances from classmates, she persevered until a time when she was the eighth best player in the nation.

Now she is a recreation department director in Dublin, and the coordinator for intramural athletics at Dublin High School.

Not coincidentally, volleyball is the mainstay of her intramural program. Upwards of 300 students participate everyday at lunchtime.

Shelly says they display interest to rival youngsters in Southern California where the sport is a religion.

They discover that she is an ex-Olympian and suddenly cast themselves into her role, all aspiring to be champions.

This is where her freckled face tightens up. Volleyball has fallen into the throes of other "Big Time" sport in America. It is clogged with administrative bureaucracy and spurious politicking. "I've got to tell them that it's not how good you are, but who you know," Shelly says.

Five-hundred girls were invited to tryouts for the 1968 Olympic team, according to Shelly. She was afforded special attention because of her father's reputation, as player and coach. On ability alone, she deserved an Olympic berth. But only her father's name insured Shelly an opportunity to qualify.

American volleyball has been on a steady descent since the Mexico City Olympics. The U.S. failed to qualify for Munich in 1972, precipitating her retirement.

The explanation for America's demise is wrapped up in administration, she says. "The problem with the U.S. team is the U.S. They just don't take care of the team. We have to work and go to school besides training seven hours a day. The Japanese, on the other hand, are given jobs to fit around volleyball.

"We can't get the most dedicated coaches," Shelly says; "Because we won't pay them. And we've got the money. How else could they afford to buy me four pairs of shoes a month when I was on the team? I came home from Mexico City with 35 pairs.

"I guess I was too young to understand all the politics involved," Shelly says.

Shelly earned a degree in recreation at Long Beach State, because; "I enjoy the human body. I think it is a good thing."

She is 5-11½, with hair the color of Manhattan Beach, where she played volleyball for five years.

"In power volleyball, people know what they're doing," Shelly explains. They hit the ball and know where it's going. It takes a lot of thinking, a lot of strategy, because before you hit, you have to decide where. You have to place the ball where the opponent's weakest players are."

Curiously, the key to the power game is softness. "You have to have that touch in the fingers," Shelly says, wiggling hers for emphasis. They have to be, well, soft, and nice."

The strategy involved in power volleyball is boggling to outsiders. The American team employs a playbook that is three inches thick. It includes 35 methods just to set up a spiker. "I showed my book to some friends who were into football," Shelly recalls. "They couldn't believe it."

Shelly has always been a volleyball prodigy. At age 10 she played on an amateur team with 20-year olds, and started. She was 17 during the 1968 Olympics, while her teammates ranged from 20-years of age up to 35.

She left her Fremont home following high school graduation and migrated to the Southern half of the state to play. "It is a way of life down there," she says. "There are volleyball nets every 50 yards on the beach."

Already, she says, there are hopeful signs. Girls playing in the EBAL are bumping and setting the ball, instead of catching and throwing like their predecessors.

The boys too are displaying an eagerness to play.

It hasn't become a religion yet. But it's a blessed improvement from the early days.

Glad QB-of the-week club

Chabot College faces the best defense in the Golden Gate Conference tomorrow night when it plays an important home football game with West Valley.

Kickoff is 7:30.

As if the offensive assignment weren't enough for the Gladiators, they must play with their third quarterback in three weeks, freshman Chuck Stevenson of Marina High School.

Stevenson, 5-11, 170, replaces the injured Steve Grant, who filled in for the injured Don Moore.

The repetition becomes bothersome for Chabot, and a little frightening. If they lose one more quarterback, the Gladiators may have to turn to the quick kick for the brunt of their offense.

Stevenson was intercepted five times last week in a loss to San Jose City College, after replacing Grant in the first quarter. Three of the thefts were by San Jose's Mike Johnson, Northern California defensive player of the week, as named by the Northern California Football Writers.

The San Leandro freshman faces a team tomorrow that has allowed just 428 passing yards through four games. On top of that, West Valley has yielded just 197 rushing, and its opponents are averaging a skimpy 156.2 yards per game total offense.

Chabot is averaging 300 yards per game on offense, so you know the two sides are not going to be compatible.

Chabot rates fourth in the GGC offensively, two spots above West Valley.

WVC has the fourth and fifth leading rushers in Mike Brown, (235 yards) and Tracy Wilson (228). Brown zipped to 97 yards on 17 carries last week in a 30-6 win over City College of San Francisco.

West Valley's quarterback is Steve Hosmer, third ranked in the conference with 28-of-64 for 336 yards and two touchdowns. He has been intercepted six times.

Curtis Bledsoe leads Chabot runners with 215 yards in four games, sixth in the conference. Teammate Robert Bruce had picked up 150 yards in three games.

The Gladiators' Tom Ferguson is now third in pass receiving with 16 catches, while Al Mundey has nine.

When Chabot lost Grant to a broken leg last week, it not only lost a quarterback, but a punter. Steve had been averaging 40.3 yards per kick, second in the GGC.

West Valley's defense is led by linebacker Jay Gingrich, 6-2, 216 sophomore.

The Vikings are 2-0 in the conference, tied for first place with San Jose.

Chabot is 1-1. A loss tomorrow could knock the Gladiators out of title contention, if the injuries to their quarterbacks haven't already done so.

It would knock them two games out of the lead, with no chance left to play the league leaders.

Silver anniversary

Amador Valley High School will present its 25th annual aquacade show Oct. 15 and 16 at 8 p.m., this year's presentation entitled, "Crystal Circus." Soloist Genny Hamilton, left, oversees the rehearsal of the Amador troupe. Others in the show are Kim Bledsoe, Skipper Maine, Kris Redeker, Kathy Bennet, Barbara Crall, Lisa Lannini, Corrie Erker, Cathy Cohan, Jennie Gualandri, Kim Stowe, Carol Zaro and Gail Johnson. The performances will be at the Aquatic Center on Black Ave. Tickets are $1 at the door, 75 cents for students.

Prayers could haunt SJS

LONG BEACH — Long Beach State tailback Herb Lusk wants to make frequent visits to the end zone Saturday when his team hosts San Jose State.

That isn't surprising, but Lusk has more than scoring points on his mind.

"I want to get into that end zone so I can kneel down and pray," Lusk said.

Nicknamed the "praying tailback" by his teammates, Lusk has had plenty of opportunity to pray the past couple of weeks. The 22-year-old minister's son has scored eight touchdowns in the 49ers' last two games.

Four of them came in last week's 31-24 victory over Southern Illinois, when he carried 37 times for 258 yards. That performance earned him Associated Press Back of the Week honors.

Why does the 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior from Seaside pray after every touchdown he scores?

"I want to thank God for giving me the ability to do what I do," he explained. "I want to kneel down in front of the 10,000 or however many people in the stands and give praise.

"I hope that it might touch somebody. I hope the next week when I'm at school, people will come up and ask me if I really believe in God, so I can tell them how I feel.

HERB LUSK
Six-point prayers

"I'd like to think that I helped save somebody."

Lusk said the four trips to his end zone "pulpit" against Southern Illinois were rough ones.

"I've got a lot of bumps and bruises from the game," he remarked. "Those guys hit pretty hard. I got real good blocking from the offensive line, and from my buddy in the backfield, Mark Bailey."

Lusk has picked up 713 yards on 124 carries in the 49ers' five games and has scored 10 touchdowns to help his team to a 4-1 record.

Lusk, who runs 100 yards in 9.7 seconds, says he's expecting a tough game against San Jose State. SJS has a win over Stanford and a three-point loss to California in its 3-1 mark.

"I know they're a good team," he says. "But I know we can beat them. If they key on me, Bailey will run on them."

The game is a very big one for Long Beach, Lusk said.

"It's important to me, important to the team and important to the to the school itself because they beat Stanford and just lost to Cal.

"It's been said that Long Beach can't play big schools. This week we'll see."

Lusk said he had one personal goal for the year — to be an All-American.

"I'd like that. I'd like to be God's All-American," he said, obviously pleased with the way the phrase sounded.

Two former EBAL players will again see action tomorrow for the Spartans.

Running back Rick Kane, from Amador Valley High School, will start on offense while linebacker Rayford Roberson, a Dublin graduate, will play on the special teams.

Foothill shuns strong Franklin

Struggling Foothill High School has been forced to cancel its varsity football game with Franklin High Oct. 24 in Stockton, principal Don Landers announced yesterday.

The Falcons, 0-4, have been battered by injuries, Landers said, and can't field a representative club to face Franklin, a school of 2,600 students.

"We'll leave that weekend open to heal up those injuries," Landers said.

Foothill, playing its first year of varsity football, opened the season with just 18 players. The school has no seniors. Injuries have depleted the already lean Falcon roster, and forced coach John Lupoi to promote five sophomores to the varsity, Landers said. "It would just not be right to put them in this situation," Landers said of the upcoming game. "A lot of kids are forced to go both ways, and they're dead tired by the end of a game, it wouldn't be fair to put them out there with a big school like Franklin."

The Falcons play Robert Louis Stevenson High of Pebble Beach tomorrow afternoon on the road. The following weekend they will meet Menlo, and then draw the bye from forfeiting to Franklin.

"When we made the agreement to play them last year, Franklin had a poor team," Landers said. "We felt with their bad season they wouldn't outclars us. And we were looking pretty good at the time. But they've come up with a strong team this year, and we've had the injuries. So I talked to their principal, and we agreed to cancel."

Landers assured that Foothill will play out the rest of its varsity schedule. California and St Patrick's are the final two games of the season.

Up to date AV swimmers win

An off season rule change may have influenced the outcome of Amador Valley High's 85-71 swimming upset over visiting Granada Wednesday, according to Don coach Linda Alexander.

While her team was losing the majority of races to the favored Matadors, it was picking up vital place points down the line that translated to victory.

This year, the top five place finishers are counted in team scoring. Last season, only the first three affected the totals. Amador took full advantage of its increased scoring capability to reverse an opening meet loss to Monte Vista.

"It was really interesting to see how depth made a difference, going to five places this year," Alexander said. "In every event we placed three people."

Katie Fleischer won three races for Amador, the 50 free (25.3), the 100 free (57.1, and the 50 back (30.9).

Granadas relay teams of Arlene and Patti Daley, Cathe Corallo and Jackie Ellis, swept the 200 medley and the 200 free.

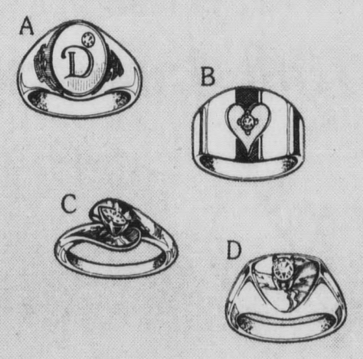

Corallo won the 50 breaststroke in 35.1, and came back in the 100 breast with a 1:14.9 winning time.

Kathy Cohan of Amador tied Ellis in the 50 butterfly

Amador's girl squad placed three runners in the top 10, as the Dons finished third with 73 points. Northgate won with 44 points and Pleasant Hill took second with 58.

Colorful A's last hurrah?

OAKLAND — They've taken Charles O. Finley and his mule out of the World Series.

It was a wild three years. Boston catcher Carlton Fisk looked up in disbelief Tuesday as Charlie O., the Oakland A's 2,000-pound mascot, was led into the coffee shop of an Oakland hotel. Fisk clearly wanted to return to New England and baseball normalcy as quickly as possible.

So he and his Red Sox teammates, most notably Carl Yastrzemski, went out and beat Finley's three-time world champions 5-3 to complete their sweep of the American League playoffs.

"They kicked tails and took names," said Reggie Jackson in a vivid post-game description of how the A's felt after being run out of the playoffs before 49,358 of their fans.

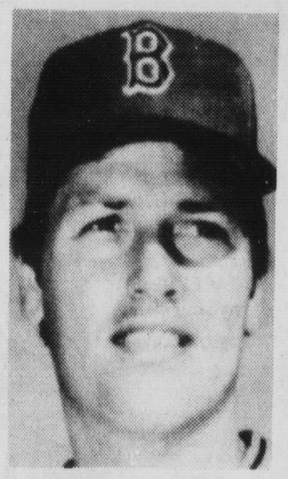

The 57-year-old Finley, who kissed his wife Shirley on top of the A's dugout at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium in 1972 to celebrate the start of the team's championship reign, wasn't here when the party ended.

"Boston is a great team. They deserved to win," the owner said in New York, where he was testifying in a lawsuit, then he vowed, "We'll be back next year."

Finley is sure to attempt some off-season moves which would strengthen the A's. Last weekend in Boston, the rumor was that he is after Milwaukee's George Scott.

Hints were dropped by none other than Scott, the man who tied Jackson for the league home run title.

Many have come and gone

CARLTON FISK
Mules? Indoors?

from the A's roster over the past four years. Some left quietly, including Mike Epstein, Denny McLain and Herb Washington.

Others — Dick Williams, Mike Andrews and Catfish Hunter — left amidst uproar and legal tangles.

The first World Series, in 1972 against Cincinnati, was the most fun. Finley was the host of parties which lasted late into the nights, he laughed when the Reds' Johnny Bench called his daughter for a date and shrugged off the fines Commissioner Bowie Kuhn levied against him for the illegal bonuses Finley awarded some of his heroes during the Series.

Then came 1973, with Finley recuperating from a heart attack at Series time but as dominating a presence as ever. Andrews' luggage was flown to New York but the utility infielder was left home after making two errors in the second-game loss to the National League champion Mets. Kuhn ordered Andrews reinstated to the roster and Manager Williams told the A's players he was leaving.

Before the 1974 season, Shirley Finley filed for divorce. Alvin Dark was named manager a few days before spring training opened.

On the eve of the World Series against the Los Angeles Dodgers, word broke that pitching star Hunter felt the owner had breached his playing contract. A baseball arbitrator agreed and the 25-game winner went to the New York Yankees.

"Charlie Finley's supposed to be smart. How could he be so stupid?" asked Jackson.

Course records set

San Ramon High School swept all four races of its EBAL cross-country meet with Dublin yesterday, despite a record-setting performance by the Gaels Doug Harvey.

Harvey set a new Dublin course record with a 14:24 clocking for 2.5 miles. His nearest competitor was the Wolves Tim Galvin who finished in 15:40.

San Ramon's Jim Anklam set a record of his own in the frosh-soph division, completing two miles in 10:05. Paul Mangini of Dublin was second at 10:12.

Patty Allen of Dublin took an eleven-second win in the girls division in 9:50 while Peter Evans led a Wolf triumph in the JV class with an 11:25.

Foothill forfeited all but the frosh-soph division of its dual meet with Amador Valley.

Two races were run, however.

Gail Coensgen took the girls race in 8:56, followed three seconds later by Don teamate Jacquenette Pla.

Two Amador runners finished in a virtual dead-heat for first in the frosh-soph division. Both Curtis Smith, who was awarded first, and Greg Novacek were timed in a brisk 10:32.

Part-time Pokes face Farmers

One week it's offense, the next, defense. About the only thing left to break down for Livermore High Friday night when it plays visiting Hayward is the cheer leading.

The Cowboys are 0-3 after the first month of football season. The ledger could read 2-1, had the defense interfered with Beyer High of Modesto, or the offense offended Terra Linda.

In each meeting, however, Livermore played but half a game. And now it faces a team that is challenging for the Hayward Area Athletic League championship, one of the Bay Area's strongest.

The Farmers are 3-0-1 and cognizant of the fact they defeated Livermore last season, 21-14. The offense is varied, and the defense is big, with interior linemen weighing 217 and 214 pounds.

Indications are that Livermore will be required to excell in every phase of its sport to win. That's just what coach Ron Berg is looking forward to.

"I think we're finally ready to put it all together," Berg said yesterday. We've been working hard and we've made a lot of improvements, especially with the offense.

"Our defense played well in the last game and I think the offense is going to come on Friday night.

"We've been working our younger guys on offense to give us some depth," Berg said. "But we're not experimenting. You don't do that with the veer offense. You just learn more about it as you go along."

Vince Farfan, 5-8, 160, and Pat Powles, 5-6, 140, are Livermore's running backs, with John Jackson, Ken Nunes and Rich Lawson in reserve.

Farfan will be starting just his second game of the season following an ankle injury.

The Cowboys are about as healthy as they've been this year, Berg says. None of the players who played in Livermore's last game, a loss to Terra Linda two weeks ago, will miss Hayward.

Shattered Cal tests Monte Vista

"Last week against Granada we just showed up. This week we plan to show up and play."

So said California High School football coach Dick Nodlinski about his team's battle with Monta Vista at 8 p.m. Friday night in Danville.

"We played all right in the first half against Granada but mistakes hurt us in the second half and we fell apart." the coach went on.

The final score 49-0 in favor of Granada supports Nodlinski's statement and it does not figure to get much easier this week against Monte Vista The Mustangs had a bye last week but trounced Foothill 34-0 two weeks ago and appear to have come of age.

California's defense has had more problems than its offense and so Nodlinski is making so changes in the former for the Mustang game.

Chris Miller will replace Steve West in the lineup. West injured pulled some muscles in his back last week and is questionable for Monte Vista.

West's loss should also hurt the Grizzlies on offense. as he is a fine receiver.

Despite the loss of West, Nodlinski says the Grizzlies still plan on passing a lot "Last week we passed 19 times: This time we may throw 39 times."

Nodlinski feels the Grizzlies have to stop the Mustangs' passing attack. "They are sure to throw a lot of passes to Jones." he said.

Jones is none other than Steve, a wide receiver who scored three times for the Mustangs in their victory over Foothill.

Jones is just one of several potent weapons the Mustangs have on offense. Talented quarterback Greg Goodman leads a backfield that includes running backs Bill Fowler and Mark Vantine and fullback Kurt Kanellis. Kanellis is also a top linebacker on defense.

Mustang coach Jim Nelson says his squad will be in top physical shape for the Cal game.

"We should have 28 players suited up for the contest," he said. "We are getting defensive end Tony Adams and end-center Martin Brown off the injury list and they should help us a lot."

Monte Vista's defense is rapidly developing into one of the East Bay Athletic League's best. The Mustang defenders have allowed just 22 points in three games, 14 of them coming in the season-opener against Del Valle.

Nelson has respect for the California gridders. "They run well out of the veer-offense," he said." They played really well in the first half against Granada but had a lot of bad breaks in the second half. We expect a good game."

In protest to all those doomsdayers

At a time when some are inclined to express their political posture with a gun, and others would organize themselves into violent protest, it might be asked: "Can we achieve something new only by tearing down the old?"

Most of us, particularly in the safety of the suburbs, would abhor the argument that a change in the nation's leadership can best be accomplished by shooting the incumbent leader. And yet some are willing to "gun down" leaders at the local level with the same reckless enthusiasm.

We noted earlier that the protest of recent school board actions — in whatever cause — too often exceeds the enthusiasm in searching out qualified candidates for that last school board election, or even taking the time to vote.

Livermore is able to generate plenty of resistance to development of just one underpass as a partial solution to that city's traffic needs; but there are few willing to channel that energy into affirmative action aimed at taking advantage of that very fine downtown hub.

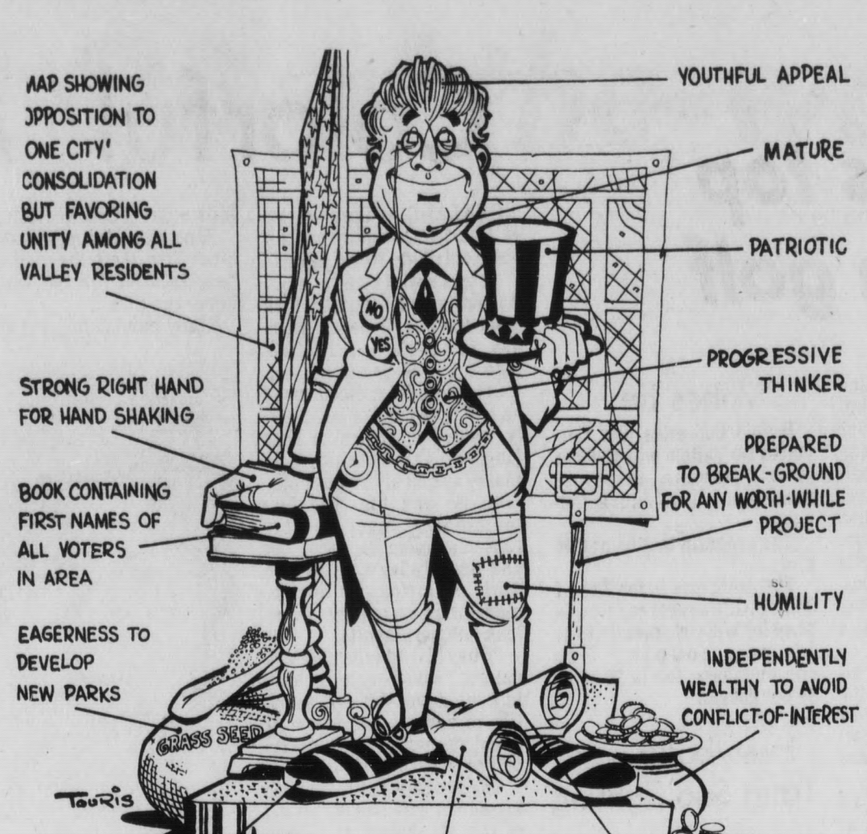

Several generations of Pleasantonites have been concerned with "preserving and improving" the century-old core area which is the benchmarks of that city's colorful origins; but when City Hall finally gets around to offering a program of revitalization of that hub, the immediate response is to "recall the council" and the lamentable conclusion that "The people have no faith in city government these days."

We have little faith in the person who made that statement. Nor are we encouraged by the drama of protest when it is played against the backdrop of refusal by growing numbers of our citizens to "get involved" in the orderly process of government.

In fairness, this cancer of negativism might be traced to those elected and self-appointed "leaders" who seem bent on disclosing everything that is wrong with their community, while rarely giving us any reason to be enthused by what we already have, or where we are already headed.

The opportunity for significant change comes, once again, in this season when we must start lining up candidates for city, county and state election tests early in 1976. We have already heard from one well-known apostle of doom who advises that "The only way to stop this thing is to find a candidate for city council who shares our thinking."

And the only way to start affirmative action is to choose from among us those who share a sense of joy for what we have, and a spirit of courage for that which we might accomplish.

The one perfect candidate

FOCUS/The upcoming campaign

Posturing politicos

The realization struck home this week that Assemblyman Floyd Mori will soon have to gear up his campaign organization in anticipation of primary and general election contests early in '76.

It seems like only a few weeks ago Mori was getting settled in Sacramento after impressively winning runoff elections to fill the vacancy left by the death of Carlos Bee.

This brings up the larger question of when does the campaigning end and the job of truly representing the people begin.

This is by no means a reflection on Assemblyman Mori's actions but, instead, a reaction to those politicians who spend more time posturing and campaigning than getting "into the trenches" to accomplish the will of the electorate.

It seems as though everytime we turn around some public official is granted a pay raise or, in the case of our legislators, votes themselves one.

It is long past time that citizens call-up the cards of those legislators who insist on glad-handing their constituents out front but sit on their duffs when the legislature is in session.

Part of the record of the past legislature shows considerable concern for the rights of high school students (P.E. Elective and Campus Smoking bills) but considerable less in the realm of funding for elementary schools and programs.

The legislature will have to be prodded, if necessary, into drafting legislation that will keep the elementary schools in this state from sinking into a financial morass from which they may find it hard to extricate themselves.

Methods must also be found, and quickly, to deal with the continuing jobs crisis in this state.

What causes this writer to be so dubious about the upcoming session is the simple fact that a major election year is coming up.

There'll be candidates by the bus load roving back and forth across the state seeking votes, talking out of both sides of their mouth (in some cases) and generally doing lots of campaigning but darn little representing (of the people).

The only way to combat this is for all of us to inform those incumbents seeking re-election to stay on the job and let their campaign organizations take care of the politicking.

Challengers should be put on notice by prospective supporters that endless speech-making, "press releases" and huge campaign chests will never supplant direction action and results.

Dr. George W. Collins

When members of his staff submitted some background material on their boss for our possible use, they entitled that piece with "The Last of a Vanishing Breed — The Country Doctor."

We don't know that George W. Collins is the very last of the valley's long line of "country doctors," but he most certainly belongs to that proud era. We are reminded of Paul Dolan and Harold Shanks in trying to conjure up a picture of George Collins' peers.

Strong men, without all the "beside manner" of today's medical specialist, but with a special kind of devotion that came with the $2 office visit, and the $10-a-day hospital bed ... in the rare instance where doctor thought your ailment really warranted hospitalization.

George Collins still serves, with all the skill required by today's practitioner. But it is more because of what he has done, and the particular dedication of which he reminds us, that we are now invited to honor him.

That gathering is set for Monday evening, at Hap's Restaurant in Pleasanton. If you want to take part, telephone 846-2252 to make a reservation. It should be a most delightful evening.

Kallam's comment

The limiting of valley population seems inevitable now, as both Livermore and Pleasanton have apparently acquiesced to federal and state pressure to lower population estimates.

The results of this limitation will be anguished cries and angry lawsuits from valley landowners who waited just a little bit too long to sell their land to developers.

Those who were in the right spot at the right time — like the ranchers who owned what seemed to be worthless land in Dublin in the mid-50's — made lots of money n a very short time.

Many figured it was only a matter of time until their land, too, would be bought up by developers for housing tracts, and their years of exorbitant property taxes would finally pay off.

Now they may turn to the courts for relief, claiming that the downward shift in population estimates has materially damaged the value of their land and that the city is liable for damages.

Unless the courts reverse over 50 years of decisions, however, those landowners will get little sympathy from the legal establishment (though lawyers will be happy to draw up briefs at $100 an hour or whatever they get).

The Euclid vs. Amber decision by the Supreme Court in the 1920's determined that zoning is legal and just recently Petaluma's attempt to limit building permits to 500 a year was upheld in court.

In other words, the pendulum seems to be swinging away fromthe property owners being able to do what he wants to the community being able to do what it wants.

When there was plenty of land and not too many people, a man could set to accomplish almost anything on his land and not hurt anyone but himself.

But today, with air and water pollution reaching critical levels, one man's decision to build 300 houses affects many more people than jst himself. His mistakes no longer affect just him, they affect everyone around him.

The state figure of 149,000 people in the valley in 1996 is a lot lower than anticipated just a few short years ago. That decision will cost a lot of people a lot of money, but it appears that nothing much can be done.

If valley residents hadn't noticed it before, this limiting of population should make it crystal clear that the America of the rugged individualist is rapidly dying.

Letters to the Times

Young thieves

Editor, The Times:
This is an open letter to parents of 7-10 year old boys:

Do you know where your son was on Thursday night?

Thursday, October 2 at 6 o'clock in the evening, H & W Stationers of Dublin was robbed of $94.00 in cash by 5 or 6 white males about 7-10 years old. They ran in, opened the cash register, took all the currency they could hold, and dashed out before my employee or myself could catch them. Hopping on their "Stingray" bicycles, the gang was gone before the police could get here.

It is hard for me to believe that a group of 7-10 year olds in this area are starting out to become criminals at such an early age.

For this reason, you can now understand why merchants like myself look with suspicion everytime a youngster walks through our doors. A few bad apples in the barrel make the whole group look bad.

Let parents of these boys be forewarned, when they are caught, they will be prosecuted to the full extent that the law will allow.

The school board

Editor, The Times:
As two parents who are interested in seeing our school district's funds used to most effectively educate our children, we attended the Pleasanton Elementary School Board Meeting, held on October 1, 1975.

We left this meeting feeling very dismayed by the hateful accusations so rudely directed at our School Board and, for that matter, anyone who disagreed with the demands being made by the Smiths and their constituency concerning the busing of their children.

This group had the audacity to infer that the Board did not care how many children were injured or killed because they, the Board, had taken no action on the matter!

We are personally acquainted with three (3) of the Board Members, and are aware of the many hours they spend on all policies affecting our children's education and related school matters. We are very appreciative of the thoughtful concern and energy given by our Board Members, and want to publicly thank them for doing their best for our children.

round the town

As soon as I got the word, I of course called our Administrator of Personnel and Related Problems.

"What should we do if Alice Doesn't?," I inquired.

"I didn't even know you had an Alice on the payroll, and I sure don't think you should be fooling around with sex orgies, particularly in that small office," he replied.

"No, no," I protested. "Alice doesn't work here. And that's just the point. If we did have any Alices on the payroll, they would likely be asking for the day off, come Oct. 29. It's National Women's Strike Day, don't-cha-know."

"When did all this happen?," the Administrator of Personnel and Related Problems asked.

"I think it came out of International Women's Year," I explained. "Somebody decided all women could best express themselves by refusing their services ... in the kitchen, on the job, in bed ... that sort of thing."

The A of P and RP ackowledged that "this is more serious than I realized," and promised to get back to me.

My immediate concern had been getting to press on time, denied all the female services in our news room ... not to mention classified ads, retail sales, the couriers. These girls could bring the nation's press to its knees, I determined.

I resolved to delve into the matter much more fully. A purple pamphlet that screamed ALICE DOESN'T across its cover provided some enlightenment.

Have you had it with the SYSTEM? You know the one ... THE SYSTEM that continually ignores, oppresses, rapes, brutalizes, imprisons, confines and restricts ALICE ...

This girl has got a problem, it was plain to see. It's no wonder she wants a day off.

So what does Alice do on her big day? It's what she doesn't do that counts, I was to learn. . . spend no money, buy nothing, boycott the kitchen, skip the male chauvinist political rally, refuse to drive the kids to the soccer game.

My God! This thing requires action by the very highest authority in the land. The nation's keenest mind on L'Affaire Femme must be consulted, I decided.

Fortunately, Jerry Brown was in his apartment, mending a few things, when I placed my call.

"This is John, Jerr," I announced in the warm tones that now mark our relationship. "It's about Alice and her problems. Realizing that you maintain personal contact with all matters of state and exercise direct control over departmental decisions, I wanted to ask you just what you intend to do on the day that Alice Doesn't."

"Just who the hell is Alice, and who the hell are you?," the governor demanded, in his inimitable style.

A few quick words of explanation followed (the man is TERRIBLY busy, after all, and cannot be expected to remember every John, Dick or Alice who comes seeking his counsel in the course of each day).

"So you see," I added, following my careful explanation, "this is a problem that warrants your wise and immediate attention."

"OUCH!" said the voice at the other end of the line.

"What was that, Jerr? It sounded like you said 'OUCH'."

"I did say 'OUCH' you idiot. What else should I say after I've just stuck the darning needle through my thumb? I don't suppose you know a good seamstress in Sacramento? ... somebody inexpensive?"

It was apparent that our beloved governor had more important affairs of state to deal with, so I resolved to take my little problem with Alice to the one person I knew would understand my need.

I found her in the kitchen, naturally, busily preparing another delightful evening meal, as only she can do. She was also humming a merry tune. I had come to the right place!

"It's about this silly thing concerning Alice ..." But she cut me off with a question of her own.

"Think you could stir yourself as far as the freezer, Buddy Boy, and get me two loaves of bread. I have to finish these sandwiches in time for the noon rally."

Buddy Boy!? Noon rally!?? Just what-n-hell is going on around here?

"A bunch of us girls are on the Planning Committee," she explained, eagerly. "We're having this get together tomorrow noon," she said, ignoring my furrowed brow. "It's part of the planning for the really big rally later in the month ... I think they call it 'Alice Shouldn't', or something like that. Think you could fix your own dinner tonight? Or else there are these sandwiches ..."

But I was already out the kitchen door, six-pack of Coors in hand.

"And where the blazes is there a darning needle in this house," I demanded, in my firmest voice. "How-n-hell can a body maintain a supply of socks if he can't even find a blessed needle?"

A man has to assert himself, every now and then.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Mary Carruth is an old friend and a pretty important one to this old man if for no other reason than that I have the feeling that I might never have met Skeeter had it not been for the lady who is so fond of one color she even writes her notes in lavender ink.

She is, in her middle years, turning her attention to writing and hopes, in time, to make her literary efforts in behalf of children a full time vocation. Apparently she is on the way toward succeeding. I hear she has sold her first effort and that it will be published next May. Perhaps the reason for Mary's success will be found by those who read what follows, an effort Mary, who is a library clerk for Murray school in Dublin, wrote for one of the district publications.

The Cause For Celebration

We are moving swiftly into the Bicentennial Era equipped with what I hope will be a feeling of excitement for our children and ourselves, a desire to refresh our own memories on historical Colonial events, and a determination to provide this generation of youngsters with interesting highlights as well as substantial facts about our nation's beginnings.

Do you know that of the fifty-six men who signed the Declaration Of Independence only a few survived that brilliant but devastating Revolutionary period? Five were captured and tortured by the British before they died; twelve men had their homes looted and burned by the enemy; nine of the original patriots died in the war either from wounds or privation.

John Hancock, one of the wealthiest and most influential men in New England, watched one night outside of Boston as the terrible war was being waged and exclaimed, "Burn Boston, even though it will make John Hancock a beggar — Burn!"

Wealthy Virginia plantation owner Carter Braxton, another signer of the Declaration, witnessed his ship's destruction in battle. He sold his home and other property to pay his debts, and he died a pauper!

Thomas Nelson, Jr., whose signature you will also find on this important document, raised $2 million independently to buy supplies for our French allies, without whom we would have lost to the British. Nelson wiped out his entire estate after the war in order to repay the loans but was never reimbursed by our government. He, too, died bankrupt and was buried in an unmarked grave.

These courageous men and others like them who supported and signed the Declaration Of Independence were prosperous, honorable, well-respected men who lived with their families in luxury, ease, and comfort. But this was not enough for them! They also possessed a fierce belief that liberty was more important than security, which led them to pledge their lives, fortunes, and sacred honor in the cause of freedom.

Thomas Paine believed that "Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must undergo the fatigue of supporting it." Now, two hundred years later, we have the unique obligation to promote those blessings among our children through our individual contributions. Have you thought about how you can become a vital part of the Bicentennial celebration which will have lasting effects upon your children?

You can begin to talk with your children about our American Revolutionary period. Make it come alive for them! All around you are the opportunities to re-acquaint yourself with that glorious age of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, and Benjamin Franklin. Vignettes are spotlighted on television to inform you of little-known historical facts; flag kits are available in local newspaper offices to help you instill within your family circle a genuine pride for our country's flag.

Encourage your children to discover for themselves the excitement which accompanies new-found knowledge, particularly when it is presented to them in many delightful ways. New materials are being written and published constantly to add to the vast historical collections already in existence. Our school and public libraries are filled with excellent resource material. The fates of those signers of the Declaration of Independence as portrayed in The Living Documents and many other significant events are recorded in cassettes and filmstrips.

Your involvement at home and our commitment at school could make the enormous difference between Apathy and Awareness. Think of the effect this could have across the nation upon an entire cadre of children marching into their adulthood armed with proper knowledge of their country's growth and progress!

I remember the look upon a child's face last Spring when he asked me to explain the meaning of the word "bicentennial," and I recall the expression upon a teacher's face this Fall as she verbalized her hope that the true spirit of patriotism would return in this era of celebration.

In a very real sense, then, I dream of these bicentennial years as a time of revelation and perception in the lives of our children through the many avenues available to them.

For Friday, Oct. 10, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't put your mouth in motion before your brain is in gear today. You could be very irritating to all within earshot.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll find you're better at handling serious matters in the p.m. than in the a.m. Don't rush into decisions without weighing alternatives.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your first impulse today is to look after your self-interests. You'll soon discover you'll accomplish more by adhering to the spirit of give-and-take.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be asked to do a favor you consider an imposition. You'll find you not only feel good about doing it, but are having fun, to boot.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you don't succeed on the first try — and you probably won't — hang in there. It may take several attempts, but you'll catch the brass ring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're apt to experience some domestic pressures early in the day. Later, things will get brighter. You won't even remember what disturbed you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An opportunity that will make or save you money will pop up suddenly. Be on your toes to grab it, for it will disappear as quickly as it appeared.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep your schedule flexible today. You're going to make some sudden changes in direction. You won't want to be locked into an outmoded plan.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be surprised today if someone who owes you an old debt comes forth and pays at least part of the obligation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your work habits won't be quite up to snuff today. Be careful how you handle tools, especially those that belong to others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll gain something of value today because one in a key position will help you accomplish things you could never pull off on your own.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A rendezvous with a person you're very fond of is in the cards today. It will be surprising, because you'll meet in a place you'd least expect to encounter her.

Your Birthday

Keep on the good side of your in-laws or family friends this coming year. One of them could put you on to something that will be extremely profitable.

EARLY MUSIC WORKSHOP TO USE EARLY INSTRUMENTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Five of the nine members of the Waverly Consort will conduct a workshop in early music performance from June 30 through July 18 under the auspices of New York University's Graduate School of Arts and Science.

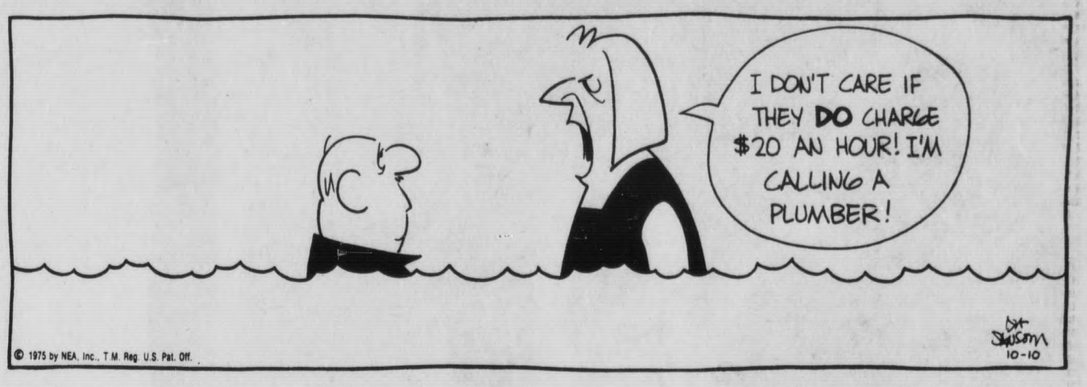

They will use instruments from the university's Noah Greenberg Collection.

The workshop is open to players of historical instruments, singers with an interest in early music and players proficient in modern instruments who want to learn to play their historical counterparts.

Grand prize winners in elementary, middle and high school divisions will be announced Saturday evening at Pleasanton Heritage Days barbecue at Fairgrounds.

Apartments may be long way off

PLEASANTON — Although Pleasanton's revised general plan calls for as many apartments to be built in the next 10 years as exist in the city today, it appears that the bulk of that construction will occur after 1981.

The problem is sewers. Although the map Planning Director Bob Harris showed the city council and planning commission Monday night 1,546 high density units by 1986, less than 70 of those units are high nn the complex sewer connection schedule.

Thus all the rest will have to wait until the Valley Community Services District sewage treatment plan is expanded to treat 8 million gallons a day (mgd) — and that expansion could never occur.

Either way, Harris doesn't see the proliferation of apartments in Pleasanton having much effect on the day-to-day living of most residents.

"Because of the location of the apartments" Harris explained "the impact will be a lot less than it would be if they were in other areas."

Presently, only about 15 per cent of the dwelling units in Pleasanton are apartments, condominiums or townhouses, while the tentative master plan (which called for a population of 76,000 by 1996) called for an eventual 25 per cent figure.

Consequently, 1,546 apartments are planned between now and 1986 and 772 more by 1996, but where the sewer connections will come from is problematical. If all goes perfectly, the VCSD plant cannot be physically expanded until 1981 — and delays are quite likely.

In fact, it appears that the apartments will have to wait until expansion beyond 8 mgd takes place.

The primary reason that the apartments are included for the next 10 years is that once land is zoned for high density, the owner only has to get approval from the Design Review Board. No tentative or final subdivision maps have to be filed because no subdividing is taking place (unless condominiums or townhouses are being built).

Thus, the city is somewhat committed to that land being developed and if a population ceiling is to be set, the possible development of all high density land must be assumed.

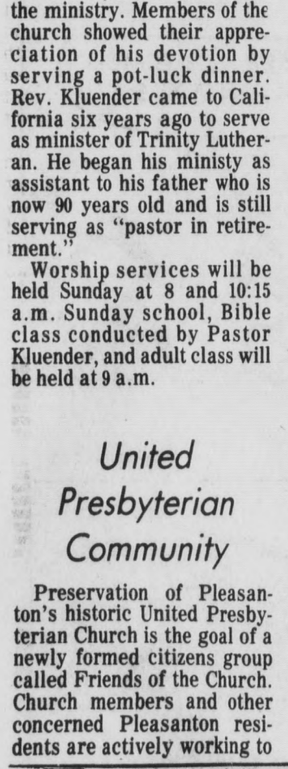

The demand for apartments is high, as well. Harris reported Monday night that there is a "pent-up demand" for apartments and since pointed out the East County Government Center and the Stoneridge Shopping Center both will create jobs for apartment dwellers in Pleasanton.

Another area where high density zoning appears on the map is along Vineyard Avenue. "If we have any problems associated with apartments, it will be along Vineyard Avenue" said Harris.

The extra traffic that would be generated by more residents would further exacerbate an already crowded street.

NEWS FOCUS

Assassination — politics or publicity

By David Hendin

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The two recent threats of violence aimed at President Gerald Ford apparently were more than drastic actions by a "couple of nuts."

Instead, the threats seem to be symptoms of problems that have roots deep within our society. These symptoms indicate a troubled people, preoccupied with violence and the pursuit of sensation, according to New York psychiatrist Dr. Herbert Hendin.

There has been such uproar and turmoil that in the past 15 years our culture has developed to the point that "people are learning to be detached from strong passions," Hendin said in a recent interview in his Manhattan office.

"Even worse," he added, "we have come to the point where people are more than detached, but mildly titillated by these actions. We've become a culture that is to be noticed. People want to have every possible experience imaginable, and if they don't do it themselves, they live vicariously."

Hendin, a pioneer in the application of psychoanalysis to the study of contemporary society, believes that today's preoccupation with sensory experiences is rooted in the idea that "any emotional relationships will lead to unhappiness. We protect ourselves by living lives with commitments that are very superficial. We replace them with the feeling of sensations."

The Columbia University psychiatrist discusses his theories in a recent book, "The Age of Sensation" (Norton).

"The attitude today," he explains, "is that if sex with one sex is good then sex with two sexes must be better.

"Out of the unhappiness that so many people feel, they have begun to look for alternate lifestyles. They see young people and imagine they're having such a great time, so they copy them."

Hendin calls this phenomenon "escape to the present." He notes that "we always understood it when the blacks or the poor people did that, but now the middle class is doing the same thing — thinking that the past is irrelevant, and who cares about the future?"

Many people today no longer pride themselves in being members of a good society that works right, Hendin says. "Now the attitude is to do anything that gets attention." The problem is that there has been a breakdown in distinction between fame and notoriety."

Once, when persons wanted to pursue a different kind of lifestyle, they simply went to it. Today, however, there is an attempt to politicize personal solutions."

Individuals no longer accept that they may have their own hangups, Hendin says. "What you do must be good for the world — make a cause of it."

And it takes a certain kind of action to be noticed enough to get a point across these days. "If the thing to get the point noticed is an assassination attempt, it could encourage more of them."

Kidnapping is another example. "Was there anything on earth short of kidnapping Patty Hearst that could get us to know about the Symbionese Liberation Army?" he asks.

"Everything has become converted in this way. It's much more comfortable for people to feel that what they're doing is in some way good for all mankind."

Hendin is afraid that these various types of social pathology are contagious. "People who are into drugs spread drug abuse. Violent crime spawns more of the same."

One reason for this confusion, Hendin says, seems to be the breakdown of family life. Many people no longer have the benefit of traditional families, and are trying to attach temselves to something similar. These may be groups like the Manson family, Reverend Moon's people or even the young prostitutes who are "cared for" by their pimps.

"These groups provide people with a new family," says the psychiatrist. "They also allow them to act out rage against their real family by living a lifestyle they know will kill their real family emotionally."

There has been much frustration with conventional family life, and from this has come the feeling that families don't work, Hendin says. "We can see all of the flaws with families," he says, "the idea now is to change those that don't work and add some that do."

Nevertheless, Hendin remains optimistic about our culture. "It's too early to say exactly what will happen, but if I didn't believe in the future I wouldn't go around having two children."

Pleasanton police peacemakers as highway sign starts fight

PLEASANTON — A lively altercation between occupants of three different vehicles Ttesday night resulted in a lengthy police report but no formal criminal charges .

According to police, Edward Bevilacqua, 47, long - time Pleasanton resident and president of the First State Bank of San Leandro, and two of his sons, Mark, 17, and William, 15, were traveling on Foothill Road late Tuesday night and came up behind two vehicles driving at "low speed."

The Bevilacqua vehicle allegedly flashed its high beams at the second vehicle, driven by Bruce Brian Bush, 25, of 36875 Reynolds Ave. in Fremont. Bevilacqua then passed Bush's car and one immediately ahead of it, driven by Charder Marie Duszynski, 22, of 7802 Oak Creek Drive in Pleasanton, the report says.

Duszynski then allegedly made an obscene gesture to the Bevilacquas, which prompted them to somehow get behind the two vehicles again. The Bevilacquas pulled in behind Duszynski's car as she parked in front of her house and began yelling at her, the report says.

Bush, apparently a friend of Dyszynski's, also stopped at the house, reportedly took off his belt, and hit one of the Bevilacquas.

At that point, one of the Bevilacqua boys grabbed Bush and another hit him, the report says.

The situation momentarily quieted down, but as the Bevilacquas returned to their car, Bush reportedly again hit a member of the family with his belt.

When police arrived, all three parties agreed no charges should be filed. Police Officer Bill Coble warned all parties against further trouble, the report said.

Chief seeks aid to stop guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — As Lebanon drifted closer to total breakdown of law and order Thursday, Premier Rashid Karami sought Syrian help to halt growing participation by Palestinian guerrillas in Beirut street fighting.

Despite a dusk-to-dawn curfew, cease-fires announced by Lebanon's warring groups, and warnings of "iron-fisted" measures by internal security forces, bloody chaos continued with heavy exchanges of fire.

The city, once the busy commercial and financial center of the Mideast, was paralyzed. Banks, offices and shops were closed and noncombatants huddled in their homes.

The casualty toll passed 300 in the latest fighting. Since April, civil strife between Moslem and Christian has killed more than 6,000.

Thursday's fighting raged unchecked in full view of internal security forces.

"Armed men are everywhere," Beirut Radio announced. "All roads are closed. There is no change in the situation."

Machine gun battles raged in several residential areas, while sniper fire and bomb blasts terrorized suburbs. Fires started in battles Wednesday burned out of control until arrival of 12 fire engines from Syria to help Lebanese crews.

Karami drove to Damascus on Thursday morning and met for three hours with Syrian President Hafez Assad, who later received Palestine guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat.

Karami and Arafat aluo met with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Hal8m Khaddam, who spent a week in Beirut last month trying to mediate Lebanon's conflict.

On his return to Beirut, Karami said only that he was deeply satisfied with the results of his talks.

Shatterproof lense rule tightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has ordered an end to exemptions from the requirement that eyeglass and sunglass lenses be shatter proof.

The agency said it believes that there were no longer any noncomplying sunglasses on the market.

A survey of the sunglass industry conducted between October, 1972, and March, 1973, found that all manufacturers expected to have sold or destroyed their non-shatterproof sunglasses by early this year.

The requirement that lenses be impact-resistant may be waived when a physician or optometrist determines that that type of lens would not suit a patient.

Argentine acting head visits Peron

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Acting President Italo Luder flew to Cordoba on Tuesday and reportedly met with President Isabel Peron. There is growing controversy over whether she should take back her powers.

Mrs. Peron handed presidentail powers to Luder on Sept. 13 and began a leave to recover her health.

The government confirmed Luder's arrival in Cordoba, 450 miles north of Buenos Aires. Reporters said he took a helicopter to the air force retreat here where Mrs. Peron is staying.

The Peronist party has said Mrs. Peron will reutrn Oct. 17 but speculation has grown recrntly that she may not resume her office. Peronists are divided over the advisability of her return.

Council, planners consider city size

The continuing discussion over Pleasanton's eventual population went on for over two hours Monday night, but no decision will be made until later this month.

City Manager Bill Edgar outlined the problem for the city council and planning commission Monday night and emphasized that a three-part decision must be made.

The first decision must be how large the city's ultimate holding capacity (population) will be; the second is when that figure will be reached; and the third is how should the city staff go about implementing the previous two decisions.

Bob Butler of the planning commission pointed out the 76,000 ultimate population that a citizen's committee decided on a few years ago was not necessarily supposed to be reached at any given date. Butler asked Edgar why the city had automatically transferred that ultimate holding capacity to the 1996 date, nd Edgar responded that it was customary for general plans to cover 20 year periods.

Presently, the city is being faced with state and federal figures that place the population at 48,611 in 1996. The higher levels of government will not fund any sewage, water or transportation facilities for a population higher than that due to environmental problems in the valley.

Councilwoman Joyce Le Claire said "I think the community would overwhelmingly support the 48,611 figure" and Councilman Bob Philcox added "The state board's projections are realistic ones."

However, the council and planning commission were curious about the legal liabilities of the city and how it could go about revising the total population downward.

City Attorney Ken Scheidig made a presentation to the group on just those questions and assured all concerned that the city legally has the right to change the zoning, and thus control population.

He cited a recent decision concerning the City of Petaluma's plan to restrict growth by limiting the number of building permits each year. Originally, the move was declared unconstitutional but a higher court overturned that ruling.

The key to the decision is in a Supreme Court decision of over 50 years ago—Euclid vs Amber — that said zoning was legal as long as it was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

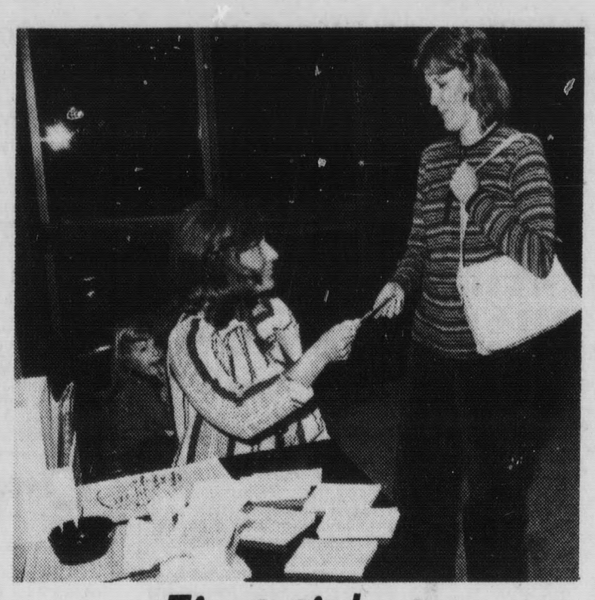

"What the courts are saying right now is that the growth of the community is up to the community as long as there is a rational program" Scheidig told the city officials.

He added "it's a good thing, I feel, that the state and EPA are coming down and placing limits. These are reasons for controlling growth."

City Planning Director Bob Harris outlined the areas in which growth would occur in the next 20 years if the 48,611 figure was accepted and admitted that many of the dwelling units will be apartments or condominiums.

"There's a large number of multiple units. It's a little less than half (the 3,000) units" he said. "There's a pent-up demand for multiple units. We think it'll explode here."

The apartments may also serve as the city's low to moderate income housing, Harris reported.

First ticket

Lee Mercer, ticket chairman of the Bicentennial Ball sells the first ticket to Kathy Mason. Lee will be on hand at the front office of City Hall from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Oct. 15 and 16, to sell tickets to the public. The Ball, "Spirit of '76," will be held on Dec. 31 at Sunol Country Club and is open to the entire community. Limited reservations at $20 per couple or $16 per couple for senior citizens, will be sold on a first come first serve basis.

Career education workshop

A workshop has been scheduled for Nov. 12 and 13 for Pleasanton and Amador School District personnel involved in Career Education.

Last year a survey of the schools indicated many of the activities taking place in the schools were Career Education-oriented.

This year, the Career Education Task Force from Sacramento met with the District Career Education Committee to plan for the in-service workshop.

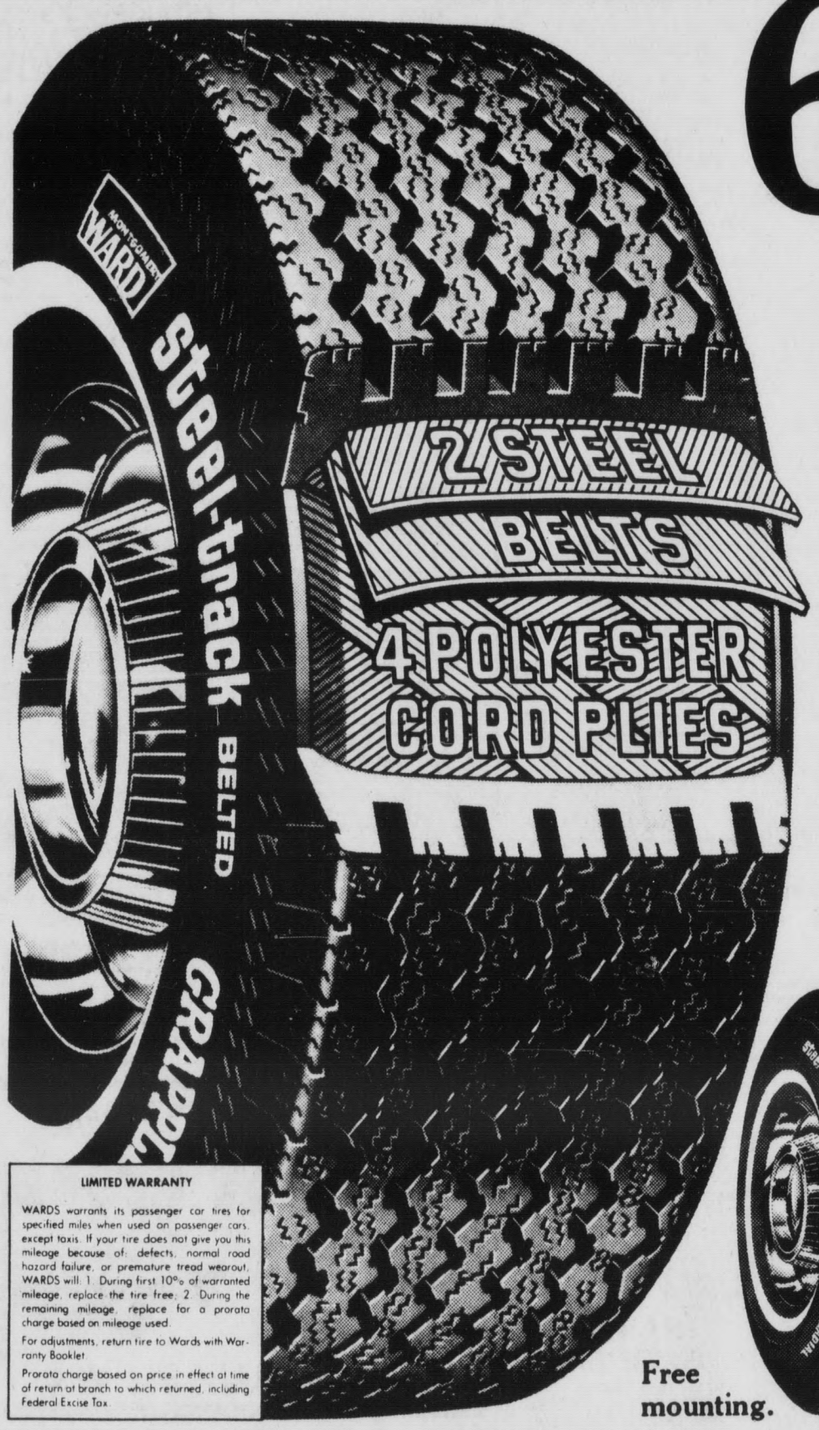

The Pleasanton and Amador districts were selected as one of five school districts in the state to work with the State Task Force to implement career education programs in the schools.
